Kunkel Park to be designed with neighborhood input

by Lindy Magner

At Tuesday's lunchtime briefing meeting, the City Council heard a report on the design of the one-acre Dan Kunkel Memorial Park planned for the past few years for 8111 Lemon Grove Way.

Council delayed approving a contract with the architectural design firm until its March 15 meeting.

The continuation of the item came when Councilman Bob Burns said the contract needed language which would protect the city from liability should some fault in the park's design cause bodily injury to residents. The city was recently sued over the design of its Broadway pedestrian walkway.

According to Nancy McCadam, city recreation department director, the park, scheduled for completion in January 1995, will be designed to serve the neighborhood. Construction is expected to begin in September.

"We plan for the park to be the pride of the neighborhood, and we want to have residents involved in its design and upkeep," she said, noting that neighborhood meetings will be held in April at the park site to gather input from nearby residents.

Three years of federal Community Block Grant (CDBG) funds totaling $235,000 have been allotted for the park's development. The design contract with MLA Design Studio is for $24,335.

McCadam explained that because the park is small, no parking lot or rest room facility is planned. The lack of a rest room concerned Mayor Brian Cochran, who said the city "would not be serving the public interest" if it built a park without rest rooms. "I bet if you asked people (after the fact) if they anticipated rest rooms at the park, 89 percent would say 'yes,' " he said.

Councilman Craig Lake suggested that if the intent of the park was to serve the neighborhood, then maybe the lack of rest rooms was a way of preserving it as such, and the park should be likened to a "condominium green spot."

Burns commented that the council had to decide how to best use the $100,000 which a restroom would cost.

City Manager Yount stated that at this point, the park design was "very flexible" and can be further evaluated.

The park will be named in honor of the late Dan Kunkel, a city councilman who died in 1987 while in office.

Connolly selects Heiserman as 'Woman of the Year'

Lois Heiserman, a three-term veteran of the Lemon Grove City Council, has been selected by Assemblyman Tom Connolly, D-77th, as the 77th Assembly District Woman of the Year.

Heiserman is being honored for her three decades of service to her community, and her unwavering support of her fellow citizens, Connolly said.

"Lois Heiserman embodies what it means to serve unselfishly for the betterment of her community. She has dedicated her time, talent and life to Lemon Grove and the people of the 77th district for more than 28 years. She raised a family here and never failed to volunteer for community service," he said.

Besides serving on the City Council, Heiserman has been active in the Boy Scouts of America, three separate PTA groups, Soroptimist International of Lemon Grove, the Mount Miguel Community Advisory Committee and the county's Lemon Grove Project.

After serving on the Lemon Grove Incorporation Committee, which succeeded in obtaining cityhood for Lemon Grove in 1977, Heiserman became the first woman elected to the council in 1980. She also served on the city's planning commission.

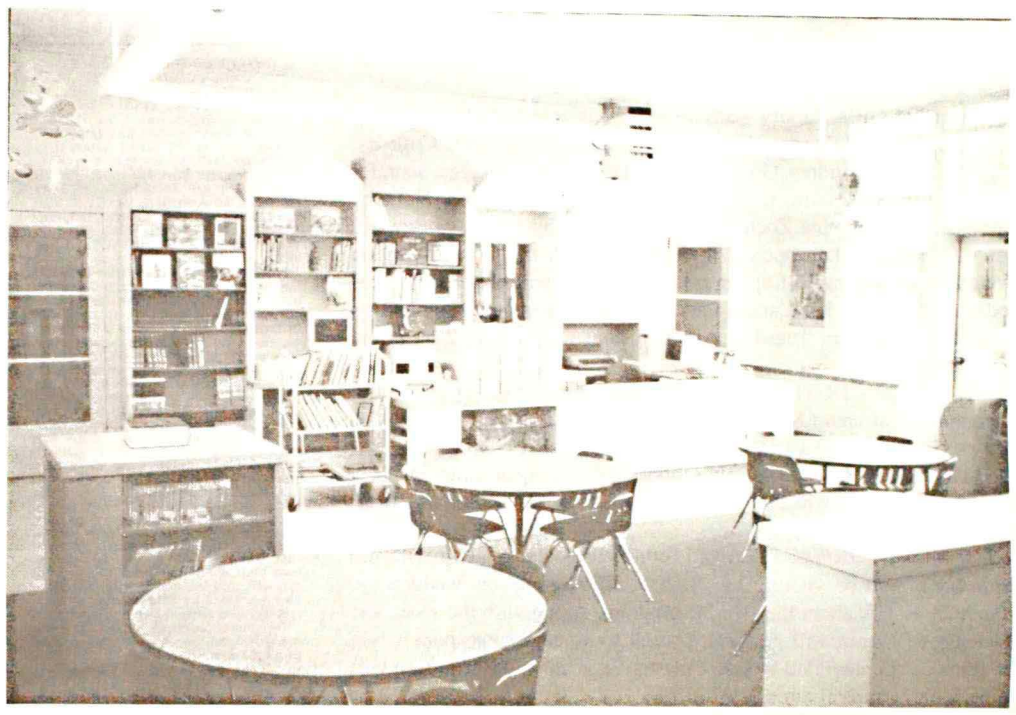
As an active member of the Lemon Grove Congregational United Church of Christ, she has served on various church boards, and has been active with the church school, teaching children's classes and leading worship services.

Her senior advocacy includes being a founding member of the Lemon Grove Nutrition Board and actively promoting the construction of the Lemon Grove Senior Center on Mount Vernon Street. She has also been a member of the Area Agency on Aging since 1984.

Heiserman is retiring from the City Council and as Vice Mayor at end of this term.

The award will be presented March 21 in Sacramento.

Monterey Heights gets new library room



Recently, the relocation of Monterey Heights Elementary School's library from one classroom to a another was completed. Since August, books were moved onto the cafeteria stage while a classroom was transformed into a library, Two workrooms adjoin that classroom, allowing for an 18-computer work center for students and a teacher workroom. According to Principal Glenn Heath, the new arrangement allows for teacher resource materials to have their own room, allowing more space for the regular library books.

Council discusses changed Brown Act

by Lindy Magner

As of April 1, city councils and other legislative bodies will be subject to the requirements of an amended Brown Act.

Three bills signed during 1993 by Gov. Pete Wilson made changes to the Ralph M. Brown Act, the act which basically guarantees public input at meetings and forbids legislative bodies from convening in secret or without noticing their meetings and publishing agendas listing items to be addressed.

Tuesday, City Attorney partner Gloria McLean presented the Lemon Grove City Council with a review of the amended Brown Act and its implications during the lunchtime briefing meeting.

She said the amendments are "still being interpreted" by attorneys.

One key change is the definition of "legislative body," which now includes most standing committees rather than just the council itself, McLean said.

Councils often appoint standing committees to address particular concerns such as graffiti, appointing one or two council members to those committees.

The amended Brown Act requires that a standing committee with "a continuing subject matter" or with "a meeting scheduled fixed by an ordinance or resolution now notice its meetings and publish meeting agendas.

Such committees will now need to adopt regular meeting times and places, McLean said, adding that she and City Manager Doug Yount will be jointly reviewing the city's standing committees to determine which will be affected by the legislation.

Yount raised the question of what designates a "continued subject matter?"

McLean responded that "no one knows for certain," but basically, if its not a committee created for something expected to be resolved with one or two meetings, then it probably would be affected by the amended legislation.

It was noted that printing agendas for these committees will increase staff work.

Also, under the amended Brown Act, newly elected council members not yet sworn into office are considered council members and subject to the provisions which prohibit a quorum of council members from discussing council business.

The amendments make the Brown Act clearer in regard to whether council members can attend social functions together, McLean said. According to legal opinion, the legislation now defines a meeting as occurring when the majority of a legislative body congregates to hear, discuss or deliberate upon subjects within its jurisdiction, or when a majority of members communicate with each other about a subject to develop a "collective concurrence," whether that communication is via electronic devices, or intermediaries.

It is not considered to be a meeting when a quorum of legislative members attend social or community functions together - as long as they do not discuss city business, McLean said.

Also, closed session items must be listed with brief descriptions on agendas and council must reconvene after such sessions to reveal actions taken. The legislation also now defines subjects for which closed sessions can be called. Also, the public now has the right to record and broadcast a public meeting.

During council discussion, Mayor Brian Cochran suggested that to be in better compliance with the Brown Act, the pubic comment period for meetings should come before council approves items on its consent agenda rather than afterward, as it now does.

"The way it is now, someone can say, hey, I wanted to speak on that - and we would have already approved it on consent," he said.

Violation of the Brown Act has always been a misdemeanor and can result in penalties as well as removal from office. At its March 15 meeting, council will consider how to abide by the new legislation.

Lemon Grove Exchange Club hosting youth talent contest

For the first year, the Lemon Grove Exchange Club is participating in an exchange club tradition - a local search for young talent.

Those ages 6 to 18 are invited to take the stage at Lemon Grove Middle School March 24, 7 p.m. to sing, dance, play a musical instrument or perform a stand-up comedy routine.

According to Marjean Wallace, the club member organizing the event, applications have just been distributed at local schools; the deadline for entering, which requires a $10 fee, is March 22.

Wallace explained that the first-place winners of this contest will go on the compete in an area contest which will include winners of talent contests held by the the La Mesa Exchange Club and the East County Professional Exchange Club. Winners of that contest will compete in a regional event in May, and those winners will compete in the California-Nevada District contest in June.

Wallace is also chairperson of the district contest, in which winners receive $1,000 savings bonds.

There are three age group categories for the competitions - primary (ages 6-9), Junior (ages 10-14), and senior (ages 15 -18). And four act categories - vocal, dance, instrumental and novelty acts. Soloists, duos and trio performances are welcome.

Wallace said accepted novelty acts would include stand up comedy routines and anything else organizer would approve, but baton twirling and trampoline acts are not accepted.

First, second and third-place winners of the local contest will receive trophies.

Missing Frank Andrews' tales

Dear Editor:

Regarding the ending of the "From where I sit," the column written by Frank Andrews (of Lemon Grove) for such a long time, I am sorry to see this happen. Having known Frank for such a long time, and having obtained such good counsel from him in my feeble attempts at writing, I will miss his weekly dips into nostalgia.

We old guys seem to revel more and more in the past, and our memories just seem to get better with age, like good wine, I guess.

I know that he had a very popular following, so even the younger generations must appreciate and enjoy many of the "good old days" stories. I am not sure that they really believe (or probably comprehend would be a better word) the experiences that we took as a natural way of life.

I recall, in my latter days of veterinary practice, when I sat on the Board of Veterinary Examiners and we were putting together a practical exam.

Another of the old-timers suggested that each new veterinarian should be made to demonstrate that he or she could milk a cow by hand. One of the younger doctors pointed out that it is just not done anymore so the requirement would be useless. So much for change.

Thanks, Frank, for your treasured tales, and your help in making my writing better for it.

Homeless vets

If this has been seriously considered before, then I would apologize, but I would also ask, why it wouldn't work?

The homeless problem is on the steady increase, and no solution has been forthcoming. Many "Band-Aid" ideas have not been of any lasting value, and on many occasions have created other social problems as well as waste tons of money. My thoughts are primarily with the homeless veterans of the Vietnam War, and other past conflicts. As I have said before, to the disdain of some, I believe that everyone owes a great debt to these men and women. Certainly, some succor for those who have not been able to live normal lives following a war experience.

The recent military base closings, made me think that there could be a partial answer presenting itself. Why not turn some of these barracks, mess halls, dispensaries, and maintenance facilities into a "Vet City?" A kind of commune, or co-op place where they would not be offending anyone, like they would in Balboa Park. The billions of dollars that we are sending overseas to other countries, some our former enemies that I am not convinced have changed, should be diverted to help our own needy people who have kept our country free.

It would seem to me that all of the skills learned in the military are basic to survival and could be again utilized. Whatever kind of job a G.I. or sailor had in the military could be adapted to a self help program in a "bootstraps" effort where each performed to his or her ability and received in accordance with their needs. Even policing, judicial and counseling services would probably be available to the veterans who are now sleeping under a freeway overpass and begging on our streets.

Some money and outside help would be required. But can you imagine the support that would come from the VFW, the American Legion, churches, service clubs, reserve units, and the active military itself? Government could supply surplus commodities, materials and some money.

If the mechanism were in place, and it was assured that the effort would be meaningfully placed without graft and selfish diversion, I know it would be successful. If we can not be sure that the latter would not occur, then God help us all.

I see the benefits as getting the homeless out of our faces. I see an opportunity for these people to regain health, self-esteem, pride, and for us to be instrumental in placing them into society where they belong. Along with just living normal lives, they could reestablish a place in society. The honor, and patriotism, and dedication that made them so effective in war, should be a strong asset to the American way of life.

The non-vets could be included in such a program with probably the same kind of melding skills in a commune situation. Rather than allow the big developers to get their hooks on valuable military property to cover with ditto-type housing that only the very rich can afford, this concept should be considered first.

The homeless problem is one where "if we just don't look at it, it will go away" is not the answer. Plus, we owe our veterans, and should honor the promises made upon enlistment.

Luncheon News

The Chamber luncheon was held at Heidi's Restaurant. The food and service was topnotch.

Boyd Stewart, Chamber president, opened the program by introducing new members Larry Linton of Lloyd's Pest Control, new dentist, Dr. Kevin Swartzberg and Mary Kuhlman, owner of Trolley House Antiques. Also attending were Mayor Cochran and his wife.

Boyd reminded everyone to get their tickets for Las Vegas night on March 26. A limited amount of tickets are available. Call the Chamber soon.

Our speaker, Vaughn Jacobs, gave excellent information on retirement planning, with a slide feature and material full of additional features covering the "do's" and "don'ts" concerning savings and planning.

Sundowner News

If you did not attend the Sundowner given by Jan Davis of Coldwell Banker you really missed a treat. Jan prepared all of the great food.

The Sundowner was held at one of Jan's vacant listings, and was an open house as well as a Sundowner.

The house is now sold! Great work Jan! Colleen Jackson of Letter-Kraft was our fishbowl winner.

Don't forget the March 23 Sundowner at Dirk's Horseshoe Lounge.

Helix's Baxter named to Hall of Fame

More than 350 parents, coaches, friends and community leaders are expected to turn out for the 22nd Annual National Football Foundation and College Hall of Fame Awards Banquet, Friday, March 18, at the Town and Country Convention Center.

Twenty-six scholar-athletes from San Diego area high schools, community colleges and universities will be honored at the banquet.

To be chosen as a scholar-athlete, candidates must have been all-league from their respective areas and maintained at least a 3.0 grade point average.

"Most of these scholar-athletes have grade point average of 3.5 or higher," said Jerry Ringer, president of the San Diego chapter.

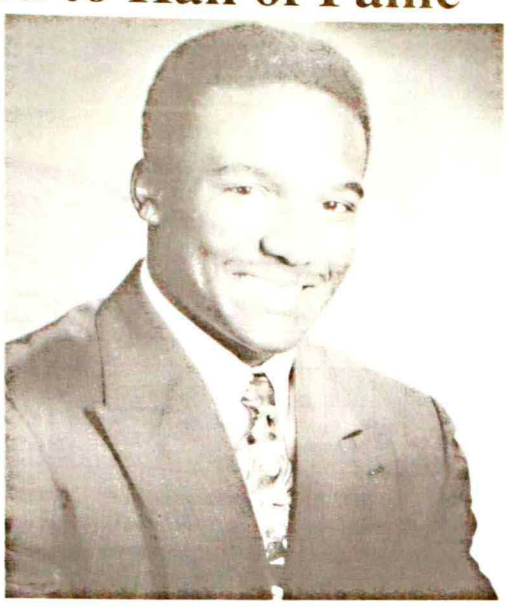
Since the awards dinner started 22 years ago, 486 scholar-athletes have been honored.

More than half this number have gone on to play football at major colleges and universities. Among them: Danny White, Arizona; Mark Malone, Junior Seau, USC; Arizona State University; Teddy Lawrence, UCLA; John Allred, USC; the late Joe Roth, University of California; Eric Abrams and Tommy Vardell, both of Stanford University.

Among this year's East County honorees is Ryan Baxter, a Helix High School standout - first team All-Grossmont 3-A League, All-CIF, San Diego Section and second team of the Union-Tribune's All-Academic Team.

Baxter is a 5-foot-11-inch, 193-pound outside linebacker from Helix High School. He received the school's Tom Saucher Ironman Award in 1993. A three-year varsity letterman in football, Baxter also earned three varsity letters in track.

With a 3.3 grade point average, Baxter is ranked in the top third of his class. On campus, he was a member of the DARE program and vice president of the Letter Club. He is a three-time recipient of the Golden Pyramid Award and is a Grossmont Scholar-Athlete.



Baxter plans to attend the U.S. Air Force Academy and major in mechanical engineering. He is the son of Sidney and Rita Baxter of San Diego.

Kiwanis Korner

The Kiwanis Club of Lemon Grove helped serve a "Fat Tuesday" pancake breakfast to approximately 150 senior citizens; and the event was a great success.

Your Kiwanians have been supporting senior nutrition programs in Lemon Grove for over 20 years; and the club has had its members on the Senior Nutrition Board since the program was founded in 1973. Many senior citizens are having their nutritional needs met each day at the center. Meeting new friends, socializing, and participating in stimulating activities are added benefits of this fine program. Home delivered hot meals are also served to the home-bound.

The Adult Day Health Care program is designed to help mentally and/or physically impaired adults to maintain their level of functioning in order to remain in their homes. Some of the services offered in this program are: medical care and supervision by a registered nurse, counseling by a social worker; physical, occupational, and speech therapy; hot nutritious noon meals and snacks; nutrition education and counseling; stimulating activities, field trips; and transportation. Seniors who partake in this program get to socialize, exercise, and enjoy peer support. Those services are provided by a professional and caring staff who are supported by many dedicated volunteers.

The Kiwanis Club of Lemon Grove is committed to supporting our senior citizens. We are actively looking for men and women who might consider membership in our fine service club. We meet every Wednesday at noon at the Lemon Grove Community Center, 3146 School Lane. Our Membership Chairman is Ray Mollenhauer, 3029 Lemon Grove Ave., Lemon Grove, 464-0390. Give him a call if you would like further information about becoming a member, or if you would like to attend a meeting and have lunch with us. You can write the club at P. O. Box 193, Lemon Grove, Ca. 91946-0913.

Support your community and become a member of Kiwanis!

High school district board struggles with boundary changes, enrollment options and R-rated films

by Susan Wolfe-Fleming

Thursday's Grossmont Union High School Board meeting was well attended and some of the agenda items provided lively discussion. Among these were a final report from the ad hoc committee on school boundaries, a draft of the school enrollment option for school year 1994-95, and a review of the utilization of instructional materials policy.

The ad hoc committee on school boundaries was appointed by the governing board last October for the purpose of analyzing the recommendations previously made by the school facilities task force on changes in school attendance boundaries. The task force had proposed that boundary changes be made in order to balance the overcrowding that was beginning to occur in some district schools. A specific recommendation had been made regarding a change in the attendance areas of West Hills and Grossmont high schools in order to relieve overcrowding at Grossmont.

This committee, including board members Ada Reep and Michael Harrelson, had an opportunity to hear from the community regarding the contemplated changes through a series of three forums held to address the issues of open enrollment and school boundaries. The committee considered possible boundary changes within the context of long-range facility needs, plans for construction of new schools and modernization of existing schools. Finally, they took into account relationships between overcrowding and both current and future "choice" options.

Before approving the ad hoc committee recommendation of an optional attendance zone between Grossmont and West Hills, the board added language that would provide transportation to West Hills. Board members thanked the neighbors for their sincere efforts at finding solutions and went on to point out the need for the Steele Canyon High School to relieve crowding to the south and east. If built, it would precipitate other boundary changes at affected schools.

Recent state legislation provides parents with school choice enrollment options within a given school district. One condition of exercising enrollment choice, however, is based upon individual school capacity. Enrollment for the entire Grossmont District is currently at 103 percent of state-rated capacity. The difference in enrollment capacity between the 10 schools is a function of the original design, the number of relocatable classroom buildings and the established boundaries which are subject to annual review.

The board is in the process of formulating choice enrollment options for the 1994-95 school year. It appears that four schools may be open for choice enrollment options. They are Mount Miguel, Monte Vista, Santana and West Hills. Upon final board approval and adoption of policies and regulations, transfer applications will be available as part of the spring registration process. Should there be more applicants to a given site than available vacancies, a process of random and unbiased selection will be used to select students.

The board will consider intra-district transfers into schools with less than 105 percent of state-rated capacity. There will be preference for some "specialized programs" such as English as a Second Language, Junior ROTC, and agriculture. Some others may be added after staff review.

Athletic eligibility will move with students. This will be a change of existing district policy which has required a transfer student to sit out a year of eligibility. The Grossmont League believes that any risks associated with the practice of recruiting are minimal. After voting to move forward with the draft plan, the board heard from members of the public.

The board had previously requested that it be provided with a review of the utilization of instructional materials policy as it relates to R-rated motion pictures. There followed a detailed explanation of the methods used to evaluate, select, use and challenge such materials. The policy requires "ethical use" of the materials. They must be relevant to the class subject matter. They must be limited in who will see them (with parental permission); and they must serve an educational purpose.

Films are approved by the department head and the site principal. Parents and others may challenge the use of any materials by following procedures outlined in the policy. Since 1986, only one such objection has been raised and it was dropped when the parent met with site personnel.

According to Superintendent Jo Ann Smith, the Grossmont District owns three R-rated films and has used some others when appropriate. Board member Olsen voiced his strong objection to the use of these films in classrooms under any circumstances. He suggested that district policy should be the same as that of the motion picture industry itself - let students watch R-rated films if accompanied by an adult.

For now, the district will continue to use some R-rated films, if they are relevant and serve an educational purpose. The R-rated films owned by the district are "MacBeth," "Das Boot" and "El Norte."
